The United Food Bank of Plant City serves more than 3000 kids this summer

Plant City, Florida — September 7, 2014 — For the past seven years, The United Food Bank of Plant City has been serving free breakfast and lunch to low-income kids in our community during the summer months. This year our Children’s Nutrition Outreach Program served more than 3000 children.

We know that many low-income children who eat free or reduced-priced meals at school miss out on good nutrition during summer vacation. This summer kids dined on breakfast bars, oatmeal, grits, canned fruit, canned pasta, canned soups and other breakfast and lunch items.

“We see people suffering everyday and making the choices between buying gasoline and putting food on the table for their children,” said Christine Miller, Director for The United Food Bank of Plant City. “Anything we can do to help families during the summer is not only our responsibility, but our privilege.”

Our summer nutrition program is funded through the generous donations of corporate sponsors and people in the local community. We are now accepting non-perishable food donations at our facility. If you would like to make a donation or learn more about our organization please contact Christine Miller at 813.764.0625.
